HEAR OUR VOICE

The results of the 2016 election devastated communities across the United States -- but it sparked a fire in thousands of people to make their voices heard. For the Women's March in 2017, Amplifier held an open call for artwork and received over 5,000 submissions in just eight days. All of the pieces advocate for the rights of women, immigrants, black and brown and queer communities, people Native to the land, and the Earth itself.

Fifty of those works were selected for a touring exhibition called Hear Our Voice. In this hand-painted image from the campaign, artist Jess X Snow represents the billions of years of joy and resistance of Mother Earth and those who have inhabited her long before hatred and fear gained power -- and who will outlive the patriarchy and blossom anew.

Harvesting is my jam.

I Since 2012, harvesting is my jam.

Today, I will transform the fruits of your conversations and projects into beautiful visuals that you will be able to share through social media, reports, internal or external communication. For the sake of good, fast and beautiful communication.

My passion for agile and transparent communication, team work, together with my ability for deep listening and fast visualization skills, brought me to work with several experienced teams of facilitators and organizations all over the world, as a knowledge worker, a graphic facilitator, and a group facilitator.

I am serious - although I smile a lot - and I am committed, punctual and honest. And I love to be at service.

I studied an Msc in Strategic Leadership towards Sustainability (www.mslls.se) and I am particularly keen to work with people and organizations that want to contribute to a healthier, more conscious and more sustainable planet.

If that is your jam too, get in touch: write me at carlotta.cataldi79@gmail.com

Vital Cities and Citizens

Over half of the world's population lives in cities. This will have risen to 66 percent by 2050. Globalisation, technological change, international migration and growing inequality are increasing the complexity of the social structure and cultural makeup of cities worldwide.

By exploring how social changes affect city life, researchers can help cities to flourish. In this Erasmus Initiative, researchers from different disciplines work closely together to identify the conditions for equal opportunities in life, safe living environments and harmonious co-existence for an increasingly diverse population.

Inclusive Cities and Diversity

Resilient Cities and People

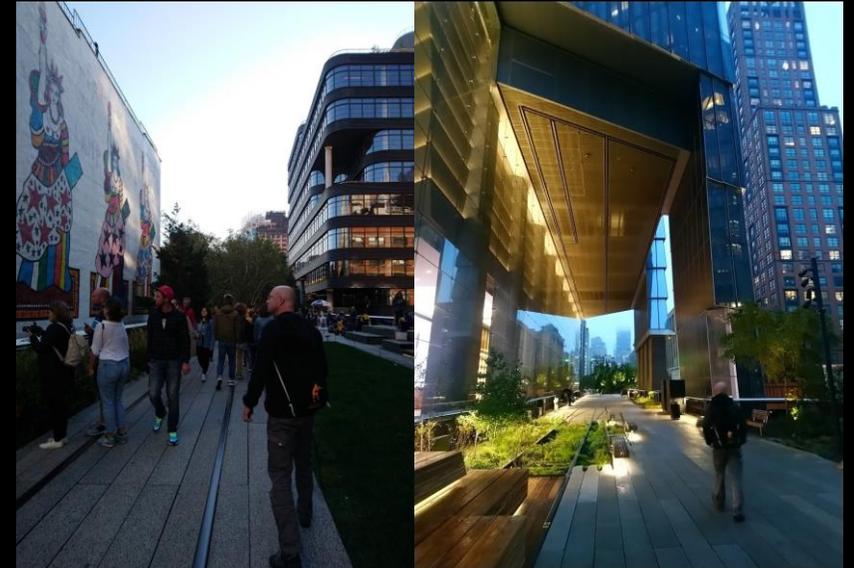

Smart Cities and Communities

Sustainable and Just Cities

How do we study #SustainableJustCities?

- Power perspective (exclusion, inequality, oppression, extraction, exploitation etc.)
how these power relations are reproduced/transformed & how we can empower each other to contribute to change.
- Transformative perspective:
transitions & social innovation
- Translocal perspective:
locally embedded & globally connected, urban-rural linkages, connecting places
